Best Dissertation Prize

2019

Description

In line with the key mission of the Centre for European Research \(CER\) to promote and advance interdisciplinary studies and research projects on Europe, it launches a 'Best Dissertation Prize' contest. The CER Best Dissertation Prize honours MA and MSc students from the School of Politics and International Relations who have written a dissertation in the field of European Union studies, European integration, contemporary European politics or comparative European politics.

Prize

The CER Prize Committee will select the winner who will get

- His/her article published as part of the CER policy brief series online and in print
- A cash award of £150

Eligibility criteria

- Candidates must be MA or MSc students at the School of Politics and International Relations (QMUL). Students studying via Distance Learning can be considered.
- To be considered, candidates must submit their dissertation by the official PG dissertation deadline.

Nomination

Students who wish to be considered must first submit their dissertation via QMPlus/Canvas and wait until the grading process is finished. Students shall then ask their supervisors to consider nominating their work for the prize.

The prize winner will be contacted in October, following the release of all dissertation results.
