

Where does my tap water come from?

The tap water that is supplied to homes in the Chess catchment and Tring, is pumped from the chalk aquifer beneath our feet. This is the same source that feeds the River Chess. If we take too much water from the ground (called over-abstraction), then the flow in the river decreases and its upper reaches dry up more frequently and for longer.

