Programme outline

Our BA joint honours programme in Film Studies and Drama is an exciting opportunity to study the dramatisation of our world across live and recorded media, and examines interrelated concepts such as production, mise-en-scène and spectatorship. You will be introduced to theories of performance and representation, and to key critical practices of twentieth and twenty-first-century theatre, performance and film. You’ll develop critical skills, which will give you a crucial insight into fundamental aspects of theatre, performance and film, as well as creative skills in theatre, performance making, scriptwriting and filmmaking, for example. You’ll also develop your communication and research skills, and skills in working collaboratively. Our staff – leading academics, practitioners, filmmakers and arts professionals – will work with you to make learning challenging and engaging, and encourage you to develop as a theatre and film critic, filmmaker, and informed theatre and performance maker.

Aims of the programme

The programme aims to:

1. Provide a coherent, innovative, diverse and intellectually challenging programme which promotes the study of film and drama to a broad constituency of students.
2. Offer knowledge and understanding of the history, practice and theory of drama and film studies, of theatre and cinema as institutions and cultural practice and of performance and mise-en-scène as forms of communication, expression and socio-political intervention.

3. Foster an understanding of the historical, cultural, political, aesthetic, ethical and intellectual contexts for the development of different forms of filmic and performance texts, practices, cultures and critiques.

4. Foster critical reflection on issues of diversity and difference that emerge from the study of and engagement with a range of forms, cultures and values through an inclusive, global and decolonising curriculum and learning environment, adopting multiple analytical perspectives, knowledge systems and interpretive scholarly frameworks.

5. Encourage participation in a culture of laboratory research, enabling you to use performance as a means for articulating ideas, and to undertake independent research tasks, including practice-based research.

6. Enhance literacy and creativity and develop skills in theatrical, dramatic and performance analysis, as well as oral and physical expression for the communication of ideas and argument.

7. To learn about the pre-production, production and post-production phases of filmmaking including the opportunity to have hands-on experience of how to produce, script, plan, research, film, edit and post-produce films.

8. Learn how to develop filmmaking projects via pitches, treatments, workshops and production folders.

9. Give access to a range of material and media that is worthy of study either as a product of the specific national culture concerned or in a broader cultural and intellectual perspective, or both.

10. Provide an opportunity to develop skills in interpretation, analysis, synthesis, critical appreciation, argumentation, communication, and study.

11. Enable the development of independent critical thinking and judgment and to undertake independent research tasks.

12. Develop a range of skills necessary to the effective communication of ideas and arguments.

13. Develop a range of subject-specific and transferable skills appropriate to a wide range of subsequent careers; in particular, to develop graduates’ capacity for further learning; to prepare you for further study or research; to equip graduates to meet international, national, regional or local needs.

14. Understand how the study of film and filmmaking operates across a broader frame of interdisciplinary studies within and beyond the humanities.

What will you be expected to achieve?

On completion of this programme you should be able to (see list of Learning Outcomes below):

Please note that the following information is only applicable to students who commenced their Level 4 studies in 2017/18, or 2018/19

In each year of undergraduate study, students are required to study modules to the value of at least 10 credits, which align to one or more of the following themes:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

These modules will be identified through the Module Directory, and / or by your School or Institute as your studies progress.

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the Teaching and Learning Strategy of the Schools of English and Drama, and of Languages, Linguistics and Film. These strategies aim to:

- Foster a sense of community amongst students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning;
- Promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;
- Expose you to a diverse set of approaches to the study of your subject area, facilitating decolonising approaches;
- Encourage you to take responsibility for your own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;
- Inspire intellectual independence;
- Employ a variety of assessment methods;
- Prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study through the acquisition of transferable skills.

Teaching takes a number of forms, including:

* workshops, including physical techniques, use of technologies and materials;
* seminars, involving a variety of forms of group work;
* small group tutorials;
* lectures;
* screenings;
* filmmaking;
* film curatorship;
* engagements with film festivals;
* writing retreats;
* lab work using multi-media resources;
* field trips, performance and gallery visits;
* presentations by and discussions with visiting artists and writers;
* individual guidance and feedback on work;
* individual supervision of projects and dissertations;
* independent work by students, including research, presentations and peer review;
* group discussion of written and practical work;
* writing intensive modules.

How will you be assessed?

Assessment takes a number of forms within the programme. The nature of the assessment is closely connected to the desired learning outcomes and the mode of teaching within each module. Non-assessed tasks (e.g. presentations, written submissions) may also be used.

Forms of assessment in Film: Assessment will typically be via different types of coursework. This will vary according to the content of the module. Coursework may consist of essays, longer research projects, textual commentaries, critical reviews, practical exercises, diaries of your own research, poster presentations, short film productions. Oral presentations, suitably monitored, or in-class quizzes may also be used.

Forms of assessment in Drama include:
Programme Title: BA (Hons) Film and Drama

| essays; written exercises (e.g. reviews, programme notes, feature articles, keyword definitions, site analyses, design analyses, pilot pieces, encyclopedia entries, blog posts, director's notes, funding applications); presentations (group and individual); portfolios (written and e-portfolios); performance projects (group and individual); proposals (for essays and performance projects); multi-media (e.g. podcasts, annotated videos, websites); dissertation |

How is the programme structured?
Please specify the structure of the programme diets for all variants of the programme (e.g. full-time, part-time - if applicable). The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

What are the entry requirements?
The entry requirements are as stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website http://www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder/index.html
How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced? How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

Each School operates an Education Committee, which considers and advises on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in this Committee’s work in a number of ways, such as through consideration of student surveys.

Each School operates a programme review of its taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. This review feeds into each School’s Annual Programme Review for undergraduate programmes and for postgraduate taught programmes using the Annual Programme Review pro-forma. Students’ views are considered in this process through analysis of National Student Survey results and module evaluations, and consideration of Student-Staff Liaison Committee minutes. Student representatives (selected across all the School’s taught programmes) are also invited to attend the Annual Programme Review meeting, and the APR document is shared with the SSLCs.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with advisors.

Each student’s academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an advisor in each Department. Advisors are the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems, and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

All teaching staff hold regular drop-in hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and progress.

There is a dedicated Student Support Administrator in both Schools, who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support.

Both the Student Support Administrators and all advisors are able to refer students, where appropriate to relevant professional service departments in QMUL including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling.

A dedicated post of E-Strategy Manager supports students in the use of the online learning environments used on all modules. Each School provides advice on referencing and writing support.

The School of English and Drama and the School of Language, Linguistics and Film collaborate with QMUL’s Thinking Writing team and Language Learning Unit to support students in the development of their writing skills. Additional support is regularly provided by professional writers working as Royal Literary Fund Fellows.

How inclusive is the programme for all students, including those with disabilities?

QMUL has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all QMUL students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:
- Finding out if you have a specific learning difficulty like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition Programme Title: BA (Hons) Film and Drama

- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum.
