

Global Intellectual Property Law Lecture Series 2016/17

The Future of the European concept of Trade Mark Functionality

Dr Cesar J Ramirez-Montes
1 December 2016, 6-8pm
CCLS, Lincoln's Inn Fields Campus

For our inaugural Global IP Law Lecture, we are very pleased to have Dr César J Ramírez-Montes as our first speaker. He will present on "The future of the European concept of trade mark functionality", a presentation on the functionality issues surrounding the registrability of three types of shape of product marks, namely natural, functional and value-adding shape marks.

Dr Ramirez-Montes is a lecturer in Intellectual Property at Leeds University where he has taught general IP law, including specialised modules on trade marks and copyright.

To register for the above event, please go to our Eventbrite link
You can find more details of the Global IP Law Lecture series at our CCLS events page: <http://www.ccls.qmul.ac.uk/events/>.

The Centre for Commercial Law Studies (CCLS) at Queen Mary University of London specialises in the knowledge and skills in commercial law that can be placed at the service of government, public bodies, overseas institutions, the legal profession, industry and commerce.

Lincoln's Inn Fields Campus, Centre for Commercial Law Studies (CCLS)
Queen Mary, University of London, 67-69 Lincoln's Inn Fields, London WC2A 3JB