Hervé Delannoy, President of the French Association for In-House Lawyers (AFJE)

As President of the AFJE, I welcome the great opportunity offered by Queen Mary’s new programme to study an LLM in the heart of Paris. The programme prepares in-house lawyers for a successful career in an increasingly globalised world, allowing them to familiarise themselves with common law issues and improve their command of legal English.

Lord Hoffmann, Former Judicial Member of the House of Lords and Honorary Professor at CCLS

The Paris LLM includes a wide variety of modules of global legal relevance, which are taught by high profile CCLS academics and prominent guest lecturers. The students benefit from an in-depth immersion in a common law environment offered by an institution of outstanding international reputation.

Isabelle Michou, Partner, Herbert Smith Freehill LLP Paris

This programme is particularly well tailored to students and professionals who are looking to focus their legal expertise on international dispute resolution. So far, I have been very impressed by the students: they are very good and motivated, they come from both common and civil law and represent numerous nationalities, giving the programme a real international dimension.

Yves Repiquet, former Dean of the Paris Bar (Bâtonnier), Partner Jeanet & Associés, Paris

The Paris LLM is an excellent opportunity for the Paris bar, offering students at the Paris Bar School (EFB) and young professionals during the first years of their training the possibility to obtain an English LLM degree while being in Paris.

Dr Georges Affaki, Member of the Executive Committee and Head of Structured Finance, CIB Legal, BNP Paribas, Paris

With its impressively varied syllabus, taught by a distinguished faculty, the Queen Mary Paris LLM represents a new and unique learning experience which offers an indisputable asset for the next generation of lawyers and business professionals.

Michael Young, Global Co-Head of International Arbitration, Allen & Overy LLP

I gave a guest lecture at the Queen Mary Paris LLM programme and was genuinely impressed by the students: they are bright, talented and come from a variety of interesting backgrounds and jurisdictions, some with significant work experience. I would certainly recommend that anybody serious about pursuing a career in international arbitration considers this course.

Jacob Grierson, Partner, McDermott Will & Emery. MWE is co-sponsor of a full-scholarship for the Paris LLM

The Queen Mary University of London Paris LLM programme is a brilliant idea: to bring one of the common law world’s leading LLM programmes to the heart of Paris and the civil law world. Queen Mary continues to blaze a trail for the future of international legal practice.
