Welcome to Queen Mary University of London

Here at the School of Law we are committed to ensuring your time at university is a positive one. Our departmental student societies, our Graduate Student Advisers, the Legal Advice Centre, and our supportive teaching environment are just some of the ways we hope to involve you in the life of the School.

We seek to offer our students the strongest possible start to their professional life by using established links with law firms, government advisers, commerce, charities and industry. Our aim is to give you a solid foundation, both academically with your taught degree, and on an extra-curricular level; offering work experience, networking opportunities, and excellent careers advice amongst other unique possibilities.

Our active student body is one of our greatest assets; you will find out more about it, and how you can get involved in the following pages. We offer lots of opportunities for you to win internships both abroad and in the UK, and a number of our undergraduate prizes are sponsored by top law firms such as Dentons.

Our academic staff are world leaders in their fields; many have been involved with high profile organisations such as the United Nations, the International Court of Justice, and the European Commission.

I hope that you find the information in this brochure a useful starting point for exploring a degree with us. Please do not hesitate to contact our Admissions Team if you require any further information.

I look forward to meeting you, and hope that you will join us at the School in the near future.

Head of Department, School of Law
Why Law?

A degree in law is highly regarded by employers of all kinds. Not only does it prepare you for a career in law, if that is what you desire, but it also requires you to consider the social, political, and economic significance of issues beyond the subject. This equips you with a wide range of abilities suitable to almost any job, such as:

- strong verbal and written communication skills
- analytical and critical reasoning skills
- lateral thinking and problem solving
- attention to detail
- independent thinking
- research skills

“The first-class teaching offered by QMUL attracted me to pursue my degree here, and being a student with an international background, I always get a vibrant feel of the truly diverse yet inclusive culture of Queen Mary. I can be myself at any time and at any place here since diversity is highly respected in this welcoming community. Furthermore, the facilities on campus offered are outstanding.”

Yumna, LLB Law

Why London?

As the capital of the UK, London provides a huge number of opportunities for law students to become part of the legal world during their studies. With some of the most famous law firms and chambers based here, there are endless networking opportunities. London provides a great professional platform for our students to gain practical experience and contacts before they graduate.

We have a long standing relationship with Snaresbrook Crown Court, and work closely with many City law firms through academic connections, the student societies, and our Legal Advice Centre.

“There is no better city to study in than London, housing over 100,000 international students. As an international student myself, it makes me feel right at home. The city is the financial and legal capital in Europe, but it is also vibrant, multicultural and energetic. London has so much to offer on both a personal and professional level.”

Ellen, LLB Senior Status

to develop yours in many areas, such as mooting, presenting, essay writing, reading and understanding legal documents; as well as partaking in group discussions and interpreting information provided in lectures.

Why Law?

It is easy to underestimate the value of transferrable skills. However, they are important to employers, and a degree in law will provide you with the opportunity
The Queens’ Building, Mile End, so called because it has a proud association with not one, but four Queens: Queen Victoria, Queen Mary (wife of King George V), Queen Elizabeth The Queen Mother and our Patron, Queen Elizabeth II.
Why Queen Mary?

The Mile End Campus is just 15 minutes from the centre of the City, where you will find numerous legal landmarks such as the Royal Courts of Justice. We are also walking distance or a short bus ride away from many points of interest in the vibrant East End, such as the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

Our students’ guide to the best places to go can be found on page 48-49.

At the School of Law, we are consistently striving to make your learning, social, and professional experiences with us enjoyable and fulfilling. From day one of Welcome Week, we hope to invest in your development. We are also privileged to attract students who are keen to be involved in the life of the School. Queen Mary is a lively and welcoming community; we have one of the largest self-contained residential campuses in London, and many of our students comment on how friendly the campus environment is, even within a bustling city.

Law

M100 LLB (three years)

The LLB Law is our traditional law course. It includes all the core subjects required to satisfy the Bar Council and Law Society requirements.

The course structure is as follows:

Year 1
- Public Law (30)
- Elements of Contract Law (30)
- Land Law (30)
- Law in Context - Semester A (15)
- Law of the European Union - Semester B (15)

Year 2
- Tort Law (30)
- Equity and Trusts (30)
- Criminal Law (30)
- plus optional modules (one full or two half modules) (30)

Final year
- Jurisprudence and Legal Theory (30)
- plus optional modules (combination of full or halves, totalling 90 credits)

Once students are enrolled At the end of their first year of study, all LLB students on any programme are invited to apply for one of five places available on the following:

- LLB Law in Practice (with paid internship in leading US law firm Reed Smith)
- M130 LLB (four years)

Student Experience

“My previous place of study was the National University of Singapore. The thing I enjoy most about QMUL is the sheer diversity of student societies which allow you to pursue your passions and interests through university activities. The Law School specifically has excellent student support from the academic tutors, and the School runs a very resourceful Careers Service that prepares students for life beyond university. Any student looking for a fulfilling university experience would be very motivated by the wide variety of extra curricular activities at QMUL.”

Sivanathan, LLB Law

The Law in Practice programme gives you the chance to learn first-hand what it is like to work in a law firm and to better understand this type of business and career path before you complete your degree. The placement year will provide you with exceptional career benefits.

Students who gain a place on Law in Practice take the first two years at QMUL, and complete the final year back with us after a year out to complete the year in industry. This programme therefore adds an additional year to the traditional LLB and is four years in length.

*students on a Tier 4 visa who extend the length of their programme due to the Year in Practice option should seek guidance from the Advice and Counselling Service about how to extend their visa
Successful candidates on the LLB Senior Status must be prepared to switch from a two year to a four year programme. Successful candidates on a joint honours degree must be prepared to become a full time Law student from the beginning of their second year of study. Successful candidates on LLB Global Law and LLB English and European Law will need to choose whether they wish to study a year abroad or accept the Law in Practice offer.

“Reed Smith has enjoyed working very closely with Queen Mary for a number of years; both on recruiting students for our vacation schemes and for training contracts. In addition, we have found Queen Mary’s Law School always to be very forward thinking and open to our suggestions of innovative programmes, which we have then collaborated to create and deliver. A prime example of this is the LLB Law in Practice degree which we launched in 2015, a degree unique amongst other Russell Group universities. The new degree gives students an opportunity, during their Queen Mary LLB degree, to build practical skills with a ‘year in industry’, working at the London offices of our global firm. In October 2016 we welcomed our first cohort of students on the new degree into the firm for their practical experience, and we are really pleased with the results. It is fair to say that the internal feedback from the business exceeded our expectations. The students have all impressed the business enormously with their professionalism, high quality work and positive attitudes – which in turn has resulted in the students being given stretching work at which they have excelled. Given the SRA’s recently-announced changes in the route to solicitor qualification in the UK, this innovative model of Queen Mary, blending practical experience into a degree, is one which we expect will become more prevalent.

We are delighted with how the first year has progressed and look forward to working with Queen Mary on the placement for many years to come.”

Chloe Muir, Graduate Recruitment Advisor, Reed Smith

Student Experience
“I was successful in being one of the first five students to attain a place on the Law in Practice Programme where I would spend 8 months in three different departments at Reed Smith a top global law firm with 27 offices throughout the United States, Europe, the Middle East and Asia. The opportunity offered by QMUL is the first initiative at any Russell Group University to provide students the opportunity to complete a year in industry. Now, three months into my placement at Reed Smith, I am genuinely overwhelmed and grateful to the Law department for the immense and hugely beneficial learning experience presented to me on a daily basis.”

Saleh, LLB Law in Practice
Global Law
M105 LLB (four years)

This LLB follows the same programme structure as M100, but you will spend your third year abroad.

With law firms all over the world expanding on an international scale, the LLB in Global Law gives selected students the opportunity to expand their legal portfolio beyond the UK. This programme encompasses an ever expanding selection of partner institutions and will allow you to experience a different country, study law in a different jurisdiction, and add invaluable assets to your CV.

Current Partner Institutions:

• Argentina - Torcuato Di Tella University (Buenos Aires)*
• Australia - University of Queensland
• Brazil - University of São Paulo Faculty of Law*
• Canada - Osgoode Hall Law School at York University (Toronto)
• China - East China University of Political Science and Law (Shanghai)
• China - Renmin University of China, Law School (Beijing)
• Hong Kong - University of Hong Kong, Faculty of Law
• India - Jindal Global Law School (National Capital Region of Delhi) in semester one, and National Law School of India University (Bangalore) in semester two

Hong Kong is a vibrant and unique city of East meets West with fascinating history and politics and with a jaw-dropping skyline combining skyscrapers, temples and – to the surprise of many – nature! Ideally located on the tip of China and close to many other Asian countries, it is one of the world’s most important and most promising financial centres to which international law firms keep on migrating. Due to its location, it is also ideal (and cheap!) for travelling around Asia. Its main university, the University of Hong Kong (HKU), is one of the world’s best universities. The truth is that one of the reasons why I chose to study at Queen Mary more than three years ago was that it offers students the opportunity to spend a year in this amazing city studying in this renowned institution. Having already spent ten months in Hong Kong, I confirm that all the above is true and that my drive to have a successful international legal career and my fascination to see the world could not have been better catered for.

At HKU I have studied international law and English law (Hong Kong was a British colony until 1997 and its law is essentially English law). Courses on Chinese law and language are also offered, both of which are becoming increasingly valuable for lawyers. Many HKU courses, like ADR, negotiation and animal law, are practical or quite niche and are not typically offered by UK universities at undergraduate level. Such courses have exposed me to new legal areas, have instilled new skills in me and will undoubtedly constitute excellent talking points at interviews. As my grades at HKU do not count towards my degree, I view this year abroad as an opportunity to focus on learning more about myself, the law and the legal practice stress-free, to enjoy studying as well as to seek to achieve high grades that will add to my employability without pressure. I believe that this break from stress will help me perform better in my last year back at Queen Mary.

During my last month in Hong Kong, I will be undertaking a vacation scheme with DLA Piper. It is because of Queen Mary’s year abroad programme that I secured it as I did not apply through the standard application route but was invited to interview based on my performance at a student competition amongst Hong Kong universities. Upon completion of my vacation scheme, I will be interviewed for a training contract and might therefore finish my third year having obtained one. Had Queen Mary not offered me this year abroad programme, apart from missing out on all the knowledge, experience and skills that I would have gained through the vacation scheme, I would have also missed this amazing opportunity to be interviewed for a training contract that could kick-start my career and take away considerable stress and pressure from my last year back at Queen Mary.

Anna Maria, LLB Global Law
Our current agreements are with the following institutions:

Tuition in English:
- Katholieke Universiteit, Belgium
- University of Copenhagen, Denmark
- Universiteit Leiden, Netherlands
- Università di Bologna, Italy
- Aristotle University Thessaloniki, Greece
- Bocconi University Milan, Italy

Tuition in native language:
- Université Panthéon-Assas (Paris II), France
- Université Panthéon-Sorbonne (Paris I), France
- Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany
- La Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain

Please note that due to the spirit of Erasmus, the placement abroad should not be in a country where a student has previously resided.

Student Experience

“My year abroad at the University of Bologna has been the best part of my degree so far. I had the chance to broaden my knowledge of European law and supplement it with classes on European and international politics and international relations, demonstrating how the legal aspects of my degree can be put into practice on an international stage. Apart from the classes, the university experience in Bologna was great. It’s a small student city and the cost of living is inexpensive, meaning there’s plenty of opportunity to get out and meet people from all over the world. The university also offers free language classes for beginners, so it’s a great way to add another skill, and Bologna is situated close to other major Italian cities such as Milan and Venice, making it really easy to travel and make the most of living in Italy.”

Miranda, LLB English and European Law
Student Experience

“In the UK, it is politicians, and not judges, that create supreme law. This degree has given me a better understanding of the political ideologies that influence our legislation and, in turn, greater depth in my understanding of law. I have also developed a breadth of knowledge in areas such as international relations, modern history and critical theory.”

_Yasmin, LLB Law and Politics_

Law and Politics

ML13 LLB (three years)

This is a joint honours degree, aimed at those who wish to pursue a career in which knowledge of both the legal and governmental systems is of major importance, and should appeal especially to those wishing to study public policy in its legal context. For anybody considering a career in either law or an alternative sector, Law and Politics graduates are very employable. Students will study in both the School of Law and the School of Politics and International Relations.

Year 1

- Public Law (30)
- Elements of Contract Law (30)
- Thinking Politically: Introduction to Concepts, Theories and Ideologies
- Law in Context – semester A (15)
- Background to British Politics OR Global Histories – semester B (15)

Year 2

- Criminal Law (30)
- Land Law (30)
- Law of the EU – semester B (15)
- SPIR optional modules (45)

Year 3

- Equity and Trusts (30)
- Tort Law (30)
- 30 credits of Law modules and 30 credits of SPIR modules

Student Experience

“When I applied to QMUL, I didn’t realise that I would be allocated two personal tutors from both the Law and Politics departments - each with academic experience in their respective fields. A personal contact within each department is useful as they are readily available to provide guidance and support when you may need it.”

Our degrees

Law with History
M1V1 LLB (three years)

This joint honours LLB offers the opportunity to study the disciplines of law and history in combination.

In the first year, your time will be divided 50/50 between the two. You will cover the foundations of legal knowledge necessary for a Qualifying Law Degree, together with a broad range of both introductory and advanced options in history. You will graduate with an ability to understand the practice of law in historical context, which will be beneficial whether you pursue legal practice or postgraduate research.

“The Law with History LLB gives a unique opportunity to study not just legal principles but the history behind the principles. This is an invaluable skill to have and gives an extra dimension to our understanding of the law.”

Kateryna, LLB Law with History

Year 1

- Public Law (30)
- Elements of Contract Law (30)
- Historical Perspectives on Law and Legal Thought (30)
- History optional modules (30)

Year 2

- Law of the European Union – semester B (15)
- Land Law (30)
- Criminal Law (30)
- History optional module worth 30 credits and optional Law module worth 15 credits

Year 3

- Tort Law (30)
- Equity and Trusts (30)
- History optional modules (60)
Law: Senior Status
M101 LLB (two years)

The Senior Status is a qualifying law degree suitable for non-law graduates. It is an accelerated version of the traditional three-year route and is popular with students considering a career in law or with an academic interest in the subject.

Year 1
- Public Law (30)
- Criminal Law (30)
- Elements of Contract Law (30)
- Land Law (30)
- Law of the European Union (15)

Year 2
- Tort Law (30)
- Equity and Trusts (30)
- Law of the European Union – semester B (15)
- Optional modules (combination of full/half totalling 75 credits)

“The Senior Status LLB has provided me with many great opportunities. It is the perfect programme for me as I already held another degree in Political Science. The LLB at Queen Mary is well structured and intellectually stimulating. The campus location is perfect, only a few minutes away from central London by tube. This makes it very easy to attend different law firm events and take part in the larger legal community. I have been able to get involved with the Law Department and participate in work experience schemes.”

Shafagh, LLB Senior Status

Optional Law Modules
- Commercial and Consumer Law
- Company Law
- Comparative Law: Asian and African Legal Systems
- Competition Law
- Criminology
- Cultural Diversity and the Law
- Democracy and Justice
- Dissertation

What to expect
A lot of our applicants want to know what to expect when they join the university. We have compiled sample timetables on the following few pages and one or two other useful pieces of information that we hope will help.

Before committing yourself to work placements or buying books – we suggest waiting until you have your final timetable and are fully enrolled so that you have all the facts. You won’t be expected to turn up knowing everything!

Course structure
You will have five core modules in the first year each of these will consist of two hours of lectures and a one hour tutorial per week. Tutorial classes are held in small groups of up to 12 students.

We have mixed methods of assessment including written exams, oral presentations, mid-term essays and coursework.

Sample timetables

Working during your studies
Some students decide to work during their degree. We would suggest trying at least the first few weeks without a job, so that you have a good understanding of the workload involved in your studies. A part-time job is not impossible, but don’t forget you will have a lot of reading to do. We expect you to be available between 9am and 6pm during weekdays for timetabling, but we make sure to keep your Wednesday afternoons free as universities have a tradition of taking part in sports at that time. You should be doing around 40 hours a week study, including your contact hours.

Reading lists
A full and up-to-date reading list will be given to you by your academics once you start on the course, and for the speedy ones copies are available from the library. You aren’t expected to start work over the summer, but if you wish to do a little reading, we suggest:

Entry requirements
Entry to the School of Law is highly competitive; as a result we look at your application as a whole. Academic entry requirements are a good basis for a law degree, but applications are also assessed on your personal statement and reference. We never guarantee an offer before one of our selectors has reviewed your application as a whole, and it has been checked by the Admissions Office. If you have any queries about the application process or your academic suitability then please contact us.

Professor Penny Green
Penny Green is Professor of Law and Globalisation at Queen Mary University of London, and has been appointed as Head of the Law Department from September 2018. She joined Queen Mary University of London in September 2014 following seven years as Professor of Law and Criminology at King’s College London. She studied Psychology, Anthropology and Sociology at the Australian National University before undertaking graduate studies and a doctorate in Criminology at the University of Cambridge.

Professor Green has published extensively on state crime theory (including her monograph with Tony Ward, State Crime: Governments, Violence and Corruption), state violence, Turkish criminal justice and politics, ‘natural’ disasters, genocide, mass forced evictions, and resistance to state violence. She has a long track record of researching in hostile environments and has conducted fieldwork in the UK, Turkey, Egypt, Kurdistan, Palestine/Israel, Tunisia and Myanmar. She has secured ~£3,000,000 of Research Council funding, including four major grants from the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC).

Professor Green is Founder and Director of the award winning International State Crime Initiative (ISCI) - a multi-disciplinary international initiative to collate, analyse and disseminate research-based knowledge about criminal state practices and resistance to them. ISCI is based at QMUL and partnered with the Harvard Humanitarian Initiative, Ulster University and the University of New South Wales (UNSW).

Professor Green’s most recent projects include a comparative study of civil society resistance to state crime in Turkey, Tunisia, Colombia, Papua New Guinea, Kenya and Myanmar; Myanmar’s genocide against its Muslim ethnic Rohingya population; and forced evictions in Palestine/Israel. Her seminal work, with ISCI colleagues, on the Rohingya genocide (Countdown to Annihilation: Genocide in Myanmar 2015; and Genocide Achieved, Genocide Continues: Myanmar’s Annihilation Of The Rohingya 2018) has drawn widespread global attention.

She has been a Distinguished Visiting Fellow at UNSW and Ulster University, and Adjunct Professor at Birzeit University. She has also held visiting fellowships at the University of Melbourne, Latrobe University, Monash University, and Bosphorus University; is a Trustee of the People’s Palace Projects, the Democratic Progress Institute and was a Trustee of the Howard League for Penal Reform for eight years. She is a member of the ESRC Peer Review College, co-editor in Chief of the international journal State Crime and Editor of the Routledge State Crime monograph series.

Throughout her career Frances has worked on social justice cases, human rights issues and pro bono matters. She remains, as she has always been, committed to the provision of legal services for those who cannot afford to pay for representation.
Seán McConville

Seán McConville began his career in prison (on undergraduate placement, it should be said) and has made punishment and penal policy a focus of study and teaching for the last several decades. He has served as a litigation consultant across the United States, worked for the House of Commons and Council of Europe, and advised government bodies on both sides of the Atlantic. Litigation has taken him into troubled, gang-ridden and violent institutions, interviewing inmates, staff and professionals, assessing conditions and relating what he uncovered. He has valued and benefitted greatly from this work beyond the world of higher education and has fed this experience back in the form of critical policy proposals.

An interest in the roots and consequences of violence has drawn him to the study of paramilitary conflict in Ireland and to the Peace Process. This work in turn helped to develop a more general interest in interviewing, both as a research tool and as a means of dealing with the past and promoting community reconciliation.

Around this core he has followed his interests in various other directions, including prison and institutional architecture and design, Islamic criminal law, law and poverty and research design and methodology. In 2014 he published the fourth in his multi-volume history of punishment, Irish Political Prisoners, 1920-1962 and (with Anna Bryson) The Routledge Guide to Interviewing. He is currently working on the fifth volume of his history of punishment, due for publication in early 2019. Seán has contributed to major British and US newspapers, is an experienced broadcaster and in pamphlet and essay form from time to time contributes to policy debates.
London was the first city I ever moved to and it is an exciting one to be in. As a Queen Mary student, I had access to many networking and career opportunities in the City. Outside of class, I volunteered with a Legal Advice Centre in East London and worked as a retail assistant at nearby Westfield Stratford. During term breaks, I would frequently travel around the UK and to other cities in Europe that are easily accessible from London.

Queen Mary has provided me with a legal education that is global and relevant. In my final year, I was offered the Drapers’ Scholarship to pursue my LLM at the College of William & Mary in the United States. Through the Drapers’ network, I have gained invaluable mentorship, international work experiences and key contacts in major cities around the world. Amongst others, I had the opportunity to lead a Business & Human Rights Symposium and volunteer with a social enterprise for domestic workers in Hong Kong.

In the past year, I have taken and passed the Malaysian Certificate of Legal Practice Qualifying Exam. I currently train as a pupil in chambers at a boutique litigation firm in Kuala Lumpur. Needless to say, Queen Mary has provided me with the prerequisites to thrive in a litigation career.

Elaine, LLB Law (2015 graduate)
I chose Queen Mary University of London for the campus experience and the high quality legal education that it offers, and it did not disappoint. During my three short years, I benefited from the rigorous academic environment and the diversity of the legal community. The lecturers were well regarded academics in their field of teaching. I particularly enjoyed the small group tutorials, where I was constantly challenged to develop independent legal thoughts.
Queen Mary offers its students a great mix of excellent academic tuition, career enhancing opportunities and engaging extra-curricular activities all in the heart of one of the world’s most cosmopolitan cities.

Studying law at Queen Mary will give you the opportunity to learn from some of the best legal academics in the world. After building a solid foundation of legal knowledge during your first year there are a wide range of optional modules to choose from during the rest of your studies allowing students to create a bespoke legal education tailored to their own interests. The degree is very challenging but studying with like-minded and driven individuals will make your time spent at Queen Mary very stimulating and enjoyable.

The School of Law and student law societies have close links with international law firms which Queen Mary students and alumni can utilise as an excellent springboard into a legal career. As a former President of the Law Society I know how much extra-curricular support there is on offer through networking events, mentoring schemes and pro-bono legal opportunities to ensure students have every opportunity to build their CV’s whilst they study.

More broadly the Queen Mary’s Student Union offers a huge range of clubs and societies to cater for all interests.

Being the only campus university in central London means that Queen Mary can offer the best of both worlds to its students. There is a real community feel based around on-site halls of residence so it is easy to make friends but at the same time you are only a short tube ride away from all the attractions of the city.

Since graduating in 2014 I have gone on to secure a training contract in the London office of a top US law firm and look forward to qualifying as a solicitor in the autumn of 2018.
Legal Advice Centre
The School’s Legal Advice Centre (LAC) offers free legal advice to the local community.

Our law students work alongside barristers and solicitors from the City to advise our clients on the strength of their case, and provide them with an understanding of the legal issues and processes that need following.

Our projects
The LAC runs eleven projects throughout the year:

- Law in General
- Pink Law
- Law for the Arts
- Immigration Law
- Company Law
- Criminal Justice Project
- SPITE (revenge porn) – including SPITE For Schools
- Law for Forces
- Family Law
- The Freedom Law Clinic
- Horizon (Personal Independence Payments)

Our students
Our advisers are selected via application, and undergo an extensive training programme with legal professionals, academic staff, and the Queen Mary Careers service. Once trained, you will have the opportunity to apply your legal knowledge in a practical context, including interviewing clients and researching their case. You will also be able to compete for one of the many work placements and mentoring opportunities the LAC offers with top City firms. We have opportunities for over 200 students to engage with the work of the Legal Advice Centre.

Our network
We work with over 100 solicitors from London firms such as Reed Smith, Mishcon de Reya, Bross Bennett, Simmons & Simmons, Fieldfisher, Kingsley Napley and many more. We also work with the barristers chambers, 15 New Bridge Street Chambers, Coram Chambers, New Court Chambers, and 36 Bedford Row. We have projects, placements and opportunities with a wide range of other organisations including AIRE and The Hoizon Legal Advice Centre. These professionals work with us by supporting our client work and investing in the development of our Student Advisers.

Our clients
The clients who use our service are usually members of the public and staff or students from Queen Mary. We are able to advise on a wide range of different issues, with the aim of equipping our clients with the legal knowledge they need and an indication of the viability of their case. Based on our recent survey, 100% of our clients would use us again and recommend our service to a friend.
Student Experience
“I have been involved in a variety of activities throughout my time at university, all of which have helped me develop different skills. The School of Law works closely with Pathways to Law which aims to support younger students interested in a legal career. I have been involved with Pathways to Law as a mentor for A-Level students and have taken part in the annual residential conference at Warwick University. I have also acted as a mentor to first year law students through the law school’s buddy scheme, and have my own mentor who has supported me since my first year. The university has many links with charities, which led me to become involved with Into University and act as a mentor to a GCSE student in the local community during my first year. Queen Mary provides the opportunity for students to learn languages alongside their degree, and since starting university I have taken weekly Mandarin lessons funded through a scholarship.”

Olivia, LLB Law
LAC module

The Practice of Law in a Clinical Environment module offers a distinct opportunity to develop knowledge of substantive law and legal procedure while working with clients and practicing lawyers from some of London’s most reputable law firms and chambers. It is both academic and practical, and provides each student with five live clients where they are the advising student lawyer with responsibility for the case.

The module is available to second and third year law students and is assessed throughout the year with essays, client case files, a simulated client interview (which takes place at Reed Smith’s prestigious offices near Liverpool Street) and a mini group viva. It is a unique module where students undertake Problem Based Learning and develop research skills to ensure they are always up to date on the law throughout their future careers.

“The LAC module is by far my favourite module during my two years at QMUL. The module provides realistic insight into the field of law and what it means to be a lawyer, including the ethical issues one might face. This module has taught me the invaluable skills of conducting client appointments, researching unfamiliar areas of law and drafting legal advice letters accordingly. Lastly, the small class setting provided the opportunity to partake in a number of intellectually stimulating discussions, which I find greatly elevated my learning.”

Hoda, LLB Senior Status

“The Practice of Law in a Clinical Environment module has been a fantastic learning experience. The module engages in practical learning and prepares students for the real world of legal practice. The module gives students the opportunity to interview real clients, discuss legal issues with supervisors and write letters of advice through the Queen Mary Legal Advice Centre. During class time, small groups of students discuss important concepts underpinning the practice of law, for example, ethics, billing, cuts to legal aid and the challenges legal aid clinics face in bridging the gap between student learning and client needs. Without a doubt, the module makes students ‘client-ready’ but also instills an undying commitment to pro bono.”

Marie-Ange, LLB Senior Status
Student societies

Our student societies sit at heart of the School of Law. We are very proud of the projects and events our students run and we hope you will be part of the continuation of this for many years to come.

To read more about our societies and the work they do, please visit our website: www.law.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/student-societies/

Mooting

Mooting at Queen Mary is a long established tradition. Our students are very successful in external moots, this year beating over 70 other universities to win the coveted Oxford University Press Moot 2014. We also host the annual George Hinde Moot which has been running for over 40 years.

Queen Mary Bar Society

The Bar Society at Queen Mary has the fundamental purpose of preparing Queen Mary law students for a career as a barrister. The purpose of the Society is to educate students about a life at the bar, including the application process, the areas of practice and the practical realities of work and finance.

Queen Mary Law Society

The Law Society is one of the largest societies at Queen Mary and currently has 440 members. The Society offers guidance to all students considering a career in the legal sector. As members of the Society, students gain exposure to all possible legal careers from working for a City firm to being part of an inhouse legal team.

Queen Mary Pro Bono Society

The Queen Mary Pro Bono Society (QMPBS) has the primary focus of increasing access to justice and understanding of the law. They seek to engage members by providing volunteering, fundraising and networking opportunities. The African Solar Cooperative (ASC) was founded by students in the Pro Bono society and is an initiative that provides a safe and sustainable source of electricity through solar panels to residents of Ghana’s largest slum.

"As the Vice President of the Pro Bono Society, I have been able to fully dedicate myself to my true passion – using the law as a tool for social change. Through our various departments, we work with both non-profit organisations and law firms to help our communities. It may be through placing students at legal clinics with top city law firms or fundraising through a charity football tournament. I have developed professionally by liaising with our members, the university, and all our partner’s organisations. Not to mention that I have formed invaluable friendships, while actually making a difference."

Ellen, LLB Senior Status
Senior Status Society
Geared towards the students on the Senior Status LLB programme, the Society’s aim is to support their members both socially and academically throughout their time at Queen Mary. They strive to provide support to all Senior Status students through offering advice and guidance with coursework, as well as providing career events and external opportunities specific to Senior Status students.

ELSA QMUL
ELSA QMUL is the first local ELSA group established in London. ELSA (The European Law Students’ Association) is the world’s largest law students’ association; it is comprised of more than 41,000 members across the globe including students and recent graduates who are interested in academic and personal excellence in addition to their university study.

Equality in Leadership
One of the newest student-led initiatives in the department, the Equality in Leadership society seeks to educate the student body on the unique challenges women face in the pursuit of a legal career.

Most law firms have set up some form of gender initiative to increase diversity; Equality in Leadership wanted to bring that to university level to help students learn about women in the legal workplace.

“Our President of the European Law Students’ Association (ELSA) of Queen Mary involves representing a European-wide network at one of the leading law schools in the country based in the legal and business capital of the world and this is an experience unmatched. It is a challenging and very rewarding role which means developing some of the most crucial personal and professional skills for life and career.”

Anastasia Kalinina, LLB
Queen Mary Commercial Awareness Society (QMCAS)

QMCAS seeks to enhance the commercial awareness skills of its members. Commercial awareness is a vital skill not just for lawyers, but for a wide range of other careers. Due to some misunderstandings surrounding this skill, we established QMCAS in 2014. We aim to offer students a number of resources, to help them gain an awareness of current affairs and changes and to explore different consequences those may bring QMCommercialAwareness

@QMCAS

Criminal Justice Society

The Criminal Justice Society deal with topics of interest to all students, not just within the School of Law, and staff as citizens, which could not form part of their formal studies either because they were not studying such topics or which were not covered by the formal curriculum. We hold talks on a wide variety of topics with speakers including drugs law reformers, former criminals, victims and their survivors, judges, magistrates and many others.

“Being a member of the Commercial Awareness Society has undeniably been the highlight of my third year! Working as the Marketing Officer is very exciting as I get to engage with our members directly and be creative by promoting our work through social media. I also have the chance to expand my professional network by reaching out to business contacts and meet inspiring people. But most importantly, I have built strong relationships with eleven other people, with whom I worked tirelessly for the success of our society. I am sure I have made friends for life!”

Louiza, LLB Law
The Careers Office support Queen Mary University of London students in all aspects of career development - from finding work experience and graduate jobs to starting your own business, or pursuing further study.
Careers

We recognise that the majority of our students study law because they are looking to enter the profession after graduation. As such, Queen Mary invests a lot of resources into specialised careers events, such as law fairs, workshops, and the opportunity to network and apply for placements through the student societies and Legal Advice Centre. A Queen Mary law degree is well regarded by City firms, and will give you a solid foundation for a career in the legal sector.

Soon after you enrol at Queen Mary, you will meet the dedicated law adviser from the Careers Team, who is regularly available throughout your studies for one-to-one advice and support sessions.

Of course, not all of our students want to be lawyers and there are plenty of chances to explore other career options too. You can find out more about the services on offer on the QM Careers website: www.careers.qmul.ac.uk

What happens after my degree?

Although the qualifying law degree (QLD) is the first step in becoming a lawyer, you will be required to participate in further training after you graduate. The chart opposite is designed give you an idea of what to expect.

Student support

Graduate Student Advisers

The Graduate Student Advisers (GSAs) are a team of friendly and experienced postgraduate students who are on hand to listen to your concerns and are able to provide all students in the Law Department with advice on issues relating to your university experience. The GSAs provide advice on a number of study-related topics, including:

- essay / exam questions
- study skills
- careers and CVs
- exam technique
- work/life balance
- time management

They also run drop-in sessions four days a week and everything discussed with a GSA is confidential. Workshops are well attended throughout the year and cover a number of study-related topics, including essay writing, revision and exam techniques.

Academic Support

When you arrive in September you will be assigned an academic adviser, who is there to support you throughout your studies. They have weekly office hours and are on hand to give academic advice, discuss your work, and help you interpret essay and exam feedback. Unlike school or sixth form college, you are expected to work independently at university, and some students find this transition a little daunting at first. Your academic adviser will be available to give you guidance and advice, so be sure to make the most of their knowledge and expertise.

LPC - OLD Route (up to 2020)

This one-year training course usually takes place in specialised professional colleges. If you have secured a training contract, many employers will pay for this and tailor your curriculum to their needs.

SQE – NEW Route (from 2020)

Solicitors Qualifying Examination 1+2

These are two sets of exams. The SQE1 knowledge-based and SQE2 skills-based exams. They must be passed in order to qualify as a solicitor.

Qualifying legal work experience

You must complete two years of qualifying legal work experience. This can be in the form of a traditional contract with a law firm or (from 2020) through up to four placements with entities such as QMUL’s Legal Advice Centre.

Qualified lawyer

Bar Professional Training Course (BPTC)

The equivalent of an LPC but for aspiring barristers. As barristers are self-employed you should look for a scholarship from one of the Inns to cover your course fees if you can.

Pupillage

In order to complete the final stage of qualification, you will complete a further year, usually broken down into two six-month periods known as ‘sixes’. The first is non-practicing and the second is practicing. You will begin by observing your supervisor, followed by the second six where you will manage your own caseload.
We have a number of other scholarships currently worth £1,000 per year, and the application process begins once you are enrolled. We also offer an undergraduate bursary of £2,000, which you can apply for upon enrolment. Details for all School of Law bursaries and scholarships can be found here: www.law.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/bursaries
In addition, Queen Mary University of London offers a wide range of bursary and scholarship packages, which are open to all first-time undergraduates; you will automatically be entered for most of these.

Details can be found here: www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/feesandfunding/bursaries/

William and Mary Scholarship
The William and Mary Scholarship is an opportunity offered to all final year students in the School of Law. It is a chance to take an LLM course at the College of William and Mary, one of the oldest colleges in the USA. The campus is situated in surrounding woodland, and based in downtown Williamsburg, Virginia. The Scholarship covers your return air fare, all tuition fees, the cost of accommodation and food, and a stipend equivalent to the British postgraduate students’ grant.

You can find out more about Rachel’s experience and the scholarship online: www.law.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/bursaries/williamandmary/index.html
Our School

Events
The School hosts and organises a large number of events throughout the year, including lectures, conferences, workshops and seminars. Many of these events are an excellent opportunity for you to network in a relaxed setting with academics, practitioners and their peers. At the beginning of each year you will have the opportunity to volunteer as an ambassador. The events team try to give our student ambassadors the chance to work closely with speakers and sponsors.

Public Engagement

Widening Participation
The School of Law strives to promote fair access to all, regardless of social background. We host a programme of aspiration-raising events on-campus and off-campus, for prospective students of varying ages. The School also administers, advertises and delivers a number of career and professional development opportunities for current students in order to promote well-rounded and experienced legal graduates.

Pathways to Law
The School launched the ‘Pathways to Law’ programme in 2016, and delivers with the support of the Sutton Trust. Pathways to Law invites a cohort of 35 students within certain social and academic criteria to attend a programme of events throughout Year 12 and 13, completely free of charge. P2L students gain an in-depth insight into legal careers through court visits, placements and presentations whilst also finding out more about university life from current Queen Mary Law students. Students who have successfully graduated this programme at any university are eligible for a reduced offer for a Queen Mary University LLB programme. More details about eligibility criteria and this year’s programme are online: www.law.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/pathways-to-law/ptl-programme

Student Experience
“Before I joined Pathways to Law, the legal profession always seemed like something that was out of my reach. It felt like only the wealthy upper class could get into law, and somebody from my background shouldn’t even try. However this programme has turned what once looked like an intimidating career into a challenge that I look forward to tackling. Without the Pathways to Law programme, I never would have had the amazing opportunities and experiences that I have, from work experience in an international corporate firm to a summer school at a Russell Group university. Signing up for this programme is by far the single best choice I made when deciding what to study and where. I’ve been lucky to have Queen Mary as my host university, which has played an instrumental role in strengthening my personal statement and UCAS application, as well as giving me an insight into law in general. I cannot thank this programme enough for helping me decide my future!”

Taylor, Pathways to Law student
Student Experience
“I was not expecting to receive the First Year Scholarship so the School of Law recognising my academic potential really increased my confidence.

The scholarship has meant that I can support myself financially without relying on a part time job, which has given me the flexibility to attend a lot of networking events and open days at top law firms and chambers. It has also allowed me to apply for summer work experience.

I would encourage everyone to apply for this scholarship, not only for the support it provides, but because it makes a big difference to applications in a very competitive field.”

Zara, LLB Law

Student Experience
“The opportunities afforded to me through the Dentons bursary is certainly huge and will provide me with not only the skills to learn in order to communicate more effectively, but also an environment that will give me experience working with solicitors. Along with this bursary, I have been given a placement to volunteer at the Dentons Pop Law legal clinic. This is important in the legal industry as work experience is a necessity in order to gain key skills required for a legal career. Just as important is the ability to see so many new places and develop new interests, and the bursary will indeed enable me to travel and attend various workshops and lectures relating to different subject matters such as artificial intelligence to shape my commercial awareness. This award has also encouraged me to develop my confidence levels because the mere fact that staff at QMUL believe that I deserve it, and that I do indeed have potential, is inspiring.”

Anisha, LLB Law
Student accommodation
Queen Mary has one of the largest residential campuses in London at Mile End, only 15 minutes by tube to Oxford Street, Covent Garden and the West End. Living on campus is fun and convenient – not to mention a great way to experience London’s vibrant East End.

All of our accommodation is in self-catered houses, flats and maisonettes. For detailed information and virtual tours, visit: residences.qmul.ac.uk/college/qmaccommodation/
Renting private accommodation off-campus is a popular choice for many students. The vast majority of second and third-year students, and even some first-years, prefer the independent lifestyle offered by sharing flats or houses with friends. We provide a range of advice and information to help you to find a convenient and affordable place to stay, including an online listing of privately owned accommodation available for rent. Much of this accommodation is in east or north-east London, within easy walking or commuting distance of Mile End.

Applying for our accommodation
Once you firmly accept your place to study here, full details on how to apply for halls will be automatically sent to you. All first year undergraduates who meet our eligibility criteria will be guaranteed accommodation in QMUL halls of residence or with one of our partner providers. For housing deadlines and eligibility, visit: residences.qmul.ac.uk/college/application

Single sex housing
We offer some single sex flats in residences that share bathroom facilities.

What is my accommodation likely to cost?
Here are some guideline housing prices. The prices quoted are for the academic year 2018-19. Residential fees are payable termly in advance:

• QMUL residences: rents for single rooms range from £132 (non-ensuite) - £177 (ensuite) per week, including all utility costs, insurance and Wi-Fi. Current prices can be found at: residences.qmul.ac.uk/college/fees
• Privately rented accommodation: student rents in the local area in shared flats and houses typically range from £120-£160 per week.

There are also a number of privately run student halls in the area, rents in these purpose built developments reflect the very high standards (most being self-contained studios) and range from between £215 - £370 per week.

Alternative housing options
We can provide specialist advice on a range of alternative housing including: renting a local room or flat, a room in a privatively built hall of residence or choosing a homestay or short-stay option (which provides greater flexibility).

For further information, guidance and prices, visit: residences.qmul.ac.uk/alternative

For all accommodation queries, contact us on: Tel: +44 (0)20 7882 6474

Queen Mary facilities and support
Queen Mary Students’ Union (QMSU) Queen Mary Students’ Union is run by students for students. There are hundreds of clubs and societies to choose from, and these are a great way to get to know people with shared interests or try something new. From the Cheese Society to ‘Green Mary’, a society for the environmentalists among you, there is something for everyone; and if you can’t find a club to join, you can set one up. QMSU run a number of events throughout the year; the Exam Stress programme was a favourite this year, with a petting zoo and the Guide Dogs for the Blind puppies making an appearance on campus!

Club Sport
Queen Mary regularly competes against other college teams, and QMSU has over 60 sports teams. There is a regular social night for the teams to meet and get to know each other; it is a great way to make new friends. A number of the teams also go on tour to other countries.

QMOTION
The QMotion gym is a state-of-the-art health and fitness centre, equipped with a wide range of exercise machines and weights. There’s a women-only section, and full programme of classes, including spinning and pilates. If you’re a bit exercise shy or just not sure how to push yourself further, a QMotion personal trainer will set you a unique programme tailored to your needs.

Shops and restaurants
As a campus university we have a number of shops, cafés, and restaurants on site. From the Village Shop just outside the halls, to Mucci’s, our Italian restaurant in Library Square, you won’t go without a good meal, a place to hang out, or somewhere to buy an emergency tin of baked beans! There is a superstore situated within a 20 minute walk from campus, or just minutes away on the tube, and a number of smaller convenience stores on every corner.

Library
The Mile End library offers a diverse range of study environments and plenty of resources to support your learning. The School of Law has a dedicated librarian who is responsible for ensuring the latest journals and text books are available, and will endeavour to get hold of anything that isn’t. The library is open seven days a week and operates 24/7 opening hours during the exam period. As a QM student you will also have access to the University of London Library at Senate House, which has one of the largest humanities and social science collections in the UK.

Advice and Counselling
As well as the academic and personal support you will receive in the School you will have access to the Queen Mary Advice and Counselling service. Their services are free and confidential, and many are available to applicants as well as current students. The advice given includes finances, housing rights, immigration law and so on. Counselling is also available on a one-to-one basis or in groups, and includes weekly therapy sessions or as a one-off appointments.

Health services
All students living within the London Borough of Tower Hamlets have access to the health services on campus. You should register with the Globe Town surgery via the Student Health Centre at the start of term. Students living outside Tower Hamlets can be treated on campus in case of emergency.

“Being a student ambassador for the School of Law required a lot of responsibility, but it was also incredible to know that you have been chosen to represent your department and your fellow students. As an ambassador, I had the chance to welcome offer-holders and talk about my own experiences at Queen Mary. I wish I’d had the opportunity to meet an ambassador when I was applying three years ago, but I am proud I represented my school and helped shape the future class of Queen Mary!”

Terms and conditions

1 Rules and regulations
The offer of, and acceptance of, a place at Queen Mary is made on the understanding that you undertake to observe the terms and conditions of our Academic Regulations and related policies. These cover, among other things, payment of fees, attendance at classes, submission of work, attendance at examinations, student discipline, complaints procedure, freedom of speech and equal opportunities policies. To read the Academic Regulations and related policies, visit: arcs.qmul.ac.uk/policy

2 Changes to our programmes
Queen Mary will aim to deliver your programme so that it closely matches the way in which it has been described to you by Queen Mary in print, online, and/or in person. However, it is important to realise that in some circumstances we may change aspects of your programme. For example, staff changes, resource limitations and factors such as a change in the law or the level of demand for a particular programme or module may result in Queen Mary having to withdraw or change aspects of the programmes and/or student services described in this prospectus.

In the unlikely event that we discontinue a programme of study, or change it significantly before it begins, we will inform applicants holding an offer of a place at the earliest opportunity and will endeavour to offer a suitable alternative programme at Queen Mary. We will also ensure that these changes are reflected on our website as soon as possible.

3 Liability for damage to person or property
Queen Mary does not accept responsibility or liability for any damage to students’ property, the transfer of computer viruses to students’ equipment, or personal injury to students caused by the misuse or unauthorised use of Queen Mary equipment, or owing to students not taking due care while on Queen Mary premises, or engaged in Queen Mary activities.

4 Accuracy of information in this prospectus
Queen Mary has made reasonable efforts to ensure that the information provided in this prospectus is both helpful and accurate at the time of going to press. However, this information is subject to change over time. For this reason, it is important that you check the website for the most up-to-date information (qmul.ac.uk) or contact us using the details contained within the document.

Applicants are strongly advised to check the Queen Mary Course Finder for up-to-date entry requirements before submitting their UCAS application: qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder
