WHAT IS THIS RESEARCH ABOUT?

Barts and The London School of Medicine and Dentistry is known for its cultural diversity and the enriched learning experience that diversity can provide. Yet, whilst diversity is widely celebrated, the experience of becoming a doctor or dentist for those from Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) backgrounds can sometimes be challenging.

We are a team of committed researchers, academics and student advisors in the School of Medicine and Dentistry and Strategic Planning conducting the research project titled above, with a particular focus on students’ from BAME backgrounds. We aim to use the findings from this research to better understand students’ experiences and how we can support all students in achieving academic success.

WHO IS INVITED TO TAKE PART?

If you are currently an undergraduate medical student in years 1, 3, 4, or 5 or an undergraduate dental student in years 1, 3 and 5, we are writing to invite you to take part in this important research study.

We are keen to invite undergraduate medical and dental students from different ethnic and racial backgrounds. We are looking to invite individuals who are NOT from BAME backgrounds too.

We will be conducting interviews and focus groups till 01.07.2020.

WHAT WILL PARTICIPATION INVOLVE?

If you agree to take part in the research, you will be asked to participate in an interview or focus group. We will ensure this is conducted by a member of our research team who is not known to you. You will be compensated for your time with a £10 book voucher. Participation in this study is entirely voluntary (you can withdraw from the study at any time).
